

David Schultz a senior fellow at the Institute of Law and Politics at the University of Minnesota Law School and teaches election law, professional responsibility, and state constitutional law. He is Hamline University professor in the School of Business and the School of Law where he teaches classes in government ethics, public policy, public administration, and election law. Professor Schultz has a Ph.D. in political science and a law degree from the University of Minnesota, an LLM from the University of London, and masters degrees in philosophy, political science, and astronomy. David is the author of more than 25 books, 12 legal treatises on eminent domain, and 70+ articles on various aspects of law, ethics, public policy, and the media and politics, and he is regularly interviewed and quoted in the media on these subjects. David is admitted to practice before the Minnesota state and federal district court bars and before the United States Supreme Court where he has participated in several briefs. He currently practices in the areas of family, election, nonprofit, and administrative law. More details about his background can be found at <http://davidschultz.v2efoliomn.mnscu.edu/> and http://works.bepress.com/david_schultz/ .