

SAN DIEGO REGION: Party Preferences by Voting Districts based on Election Results for the year 2012

In California (2012), U.S. Congressional, State Senate and Assembly general election races are runoff elections determined through a nonpartisan blanket primary. Election results were included in the map's calculation only if there was one candidate from the Democratic party and one from the Republican party competing in a general election race.

