

SAN DIEGO REGION: Voter Volatility by Voting Districts based on Election Results for the year 2016

In California U.S. Congressional, State Senate and Assembly general election races are runoff elections determined through a nonpartisan blanket primary. Election results were included in the map's calculation only if there was one candidate from the Democratic party and one from the Republican party competing in a general election race.

