University of Minnesota Law School

Policy on Concentrations

Revised September 5, 2018

This document contains the general rules governing all concentrations (the “Policy” starting on page 1) and appendices listing the specific requirements for each concentration. Students pursuing a concentration should be familiar with the Policy and the relevant appendix.

Please note that course names sometimes change from year to year, while course numbers usually remain constant. Accordingly, if an appendix lists a course number as satisfying a concentration, and you completed a course using that number with a slightly different name that addressed the same general topic, then the course counts. When in doubt, please contact the Concentration Chair for clarification.

The Law School periodically deletes defunct courses from appendices. In rare instances, a student who spends more than three years in the JD program (e.g., due to a leave or combined degree) might take an approved course that is subsequently deleted from the appendix before the student graduates. The course still counts toward the concentration and should be listed on the student’s concentration form.

Policy on Concentrations

Adopted by the Faculty on October 7, 2014
Revised July 2015

1. Scope: This Policy provides guidance and requirements for students pursuing a concentration as part of a degree program at the Law School. The Policy consists of rules applicable to all concentrations and appendices with the unique requirements for each individual concentration.

2. Student Responsibility. Students pursuing a concentration are responsible for ensuring the timely completion of all concentration requirements, including the timely submission of required forms.

3. Approved Concentrations: The Faculty has approved the following concentrations for J.D. and LL.M candidates:
   - Business Law
   - Civil Litigation
   - Criminal Justice
   - Environmental and Energy Law
   - Family Law
   - Health Law and Bioethics
   - Human Rights
   - Immigration Law
   - Intellectual Property and Technology Law
   - International Law
   - Labor and Employment Law

4. Faculty Chairs. The Dean shall appoint a Faculty Chair to administer each concentration.

5. Certification & Completion. The concentration will be deemed completed at the time of graduation from the Law School after certification that the student has satisfied the concentration’s requirements. Students who complete a concentration will receive a notation of concentration fulfillment on their Law School transcripts.

6. Dual Concentrations: J.D. students may obtain certification in a maximum of two concentrations. A single paper may satisfy the research paper requirement for two concentrations if both Faculty Chairs approve dual submission in writing. LL.M students may obtain certification in only one concentration.

7. Advising. Students are strongly encouraged to meet with the Faculty Chair each fall to discuss course selection and plans for fulfilling concentration requirements. Students should also consider contacting Faculty Chairs in the spring of the 1L year to assist with course selection.

8. Candidacy. Students may not claim to have satisfied a concentration’s requirements until after completion is confirmed at the time of graduation. Students pursuing a concentration may refer to themselves as “candidates for” a concentration, but only if they have met with the Faculty Chair and discussed a plan for completing the concentration’s requirements.

9. Timing & Registration. Candidates for a concentration register in the same manner as other students and do not receive registration priority. Some concentration courses may not be offered each semester or year. Students should begin planning completion of concentration requirements as early as possible and prioritize concentration classes in the lottery to make completion more likely.

10. Concentration Requirements: Candidates for a concentration must complete two types of requirements described below: academic requirements (completion of coursework and a research paper or immersion project) and administrative requirements (filing materials with the Faculty Chair).

   A. Academic Requirements. (For more detail regarding particular concentrations, see the appendices). Each candidate for a concentration must:

   i. Satisfactorily complete all mandatory courses.

   ii. Satisfactorily complete a minimum number of credits in approved courses. The minimum varies for each concentration. Courses are deemed approved if they are mandatory, recommended, or listed as eligible graduate level courses offered elsewhere at the University of Minnesota.

      (a) Concentrations may allow students to count no more than two journal and/or moot court credits (combined) toward the minimum credit requirement if a student’s work addresses the concentration’s field. Journal credits count only if the journal has a Faculty Editor. Individual concentrations may further limit the number of journal and moot court credits that are available.

      (b) Concentrations may allow credit for Independent Research and Writing (LAW 7606/7608) and Independent Field Placement (LAW 7607/7609). The Faculty Chair must approve each project or placement.

      (c) A student may petition the Faculty Chair to approve, in his or her discretion, a course not listed in the appendix if the course is substantially law-related and will substantially further the student’s understanding of the concentration’s subject matter. Petitions should be filed as early as possible.

      (d) Credits earned while attending another law school may be applied to the concentration (including as substitutes for required courses) at the discretion of the Faculty Chair. Such credits may not exceed the number of credits awarded for equivalent courses at the Law School.

      (e) Concentrations may recommend attendance at non-credited exercises in addition to credited courses. Examples include a workshop series exploring issues and/or careers within the field, or periodic discussion sessions with the Faculty Chair.

(f) Students should be aware that Academic Rule 3 limits the number of credits that students may earn for coursework outside Law School classrooms. Nothing in this Policy governing concentrations modifies Academic Rule 3.

iii. Complete a substantial research paper or immersion experience. Concentrations may choose whether to require a research paper, require an immersion experience, or offer a choice of either the research paper or immersion experience. If an immersion experience is an option, the appendix will identify courses that satisfy Section 10(A)(iii)(b); otherwise, a research paper is required.

(a) Requirements for Research Paper:

(i) The paper must demonstrate significant research and original analysis, with appropriate citation of authority; be well organized and well written; and be at least 5000 words in length, excluding any bibliography and table of contents. The cover page must certify that the paper satisfies the length requirement. Papers must be prepared as part of a credited course at the University of Minnesota (or, with approval of the Faculty Chair, as part of a credited course at another law school).

(ii) The research paper must address a legal topic related to the concentration. Students should obtain advance approval of topics rather than assuming that a particular paper will satisfy concentration requirements. The following people may approve paper topics: (a) any member of a concentration’s core faculty (listed in the appendices) who supervises preparation of the paper in a credited course or is otherwise designated to approve topics by the Faculty Chair; (b) any instructor of a mandatory or recommended course if the paper is prepared as part of the course; (c) the Faculty Chair.

(iii) Credit for the underlying course does not necessarily count toward concentration minimums. The same project may also satisfy the Law School’s legal writing requirement if it otherwise qualifies under the Academic Rules governing legal writing.

(iv) A brief may fulfill this requirement if the Faculty Chair concludes that the research and writing is comparable to that of a research paper and

1 For example, if a student writes a paper while enrolled in a seminar, and the seminar is not listed as an approved course, then the student would not receive concentration credit for the seminar. Yet the paper may, in the Faculty Chair’s discretion, satisfy the concentration’s research paper requirement. Similarly, some concentrations might not give any credit, or only partial credit, for Independent Research and Writing. Yet a paper written as part of an Independent project might satisfy the research paper requirement. In short, whether a paper satisfies the research paper requirement and whether the student earns credit that counts toward coursework requirements are distinct questions.
if the brief (or relevant portion) is the sole work of the candidate. Students planning to submit portions of a co-authored brief should retain a draft of the brief that is their sole work to submit in satisfaction of this requirement.

(v) A student must receive at least a passing grade (including an S on an S/N scale) in the course for which the paper was prepared.

(vi) Papers must be submitted to the Faculty Chair no later than December 15 (for fall graduates) or May 15 (for spring graduates) of the student’s graduation year.

(b) Requirements for substantial immersion experience: The student must satisfactorily complete a credited course at the Law School involving substantial practical immersion in the concentration’s subject-matter, such as a clinic, externship, field placement, or capstone, or an intensive writing course from a list of courses approved under Academic Rule 5.4(a)(i).

B. Administrative Requirements.

i. Each candidate must submit a Concentration Completion Memorandum and all required attachments to the Faculty Chair. The Faculty Chair may require a meeting with the candidate to discuss the memorandum.

ii. The Concentration Completion Memorandum is due by the last day of October for students graduating in December and by the last day of March for students graduating in May. Students should gather the necessary information as soon as possible to ensure timely submission.

a. The Faculty Chair will certify that a student has satisfied concentration requirements only if the Concentration Completion Memorandum and the Chair’s own review of the record establishes that the requirements have been satisfied.

b. The Chair may make a provisional certification if the concentration requirements would be satisfied upon receipt of passing grades in pending coursework or on a pending research paper. The Registrar may then record completion of the concentration upon receipt of the missing grades and/or upon receipt of confirmation from the Faculty Chair that the student has satisfied the research paper requirement.

c. The Registrar may independently review whether a student has completed a sufficient number of credits and bring any discrepancies to the attention of the Faculty Chair and/or Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.

12. Appendices. The appendices are updated on a regular basis. Course names and numbers occasionally change between updates and the number of credits available for each course may vary from semester to semester. Some listed courses may not be offered every year. Students are responsible for ensuring that they meet all concentration requirements and should bring any ambiguities or errors in the appendices to the attention of the relevant Faculty Chair.

13. Interpretation. The Associate Dean for Academic Affairs may make interpretations of this Policy.

14. Amendments. Amendments to this Policy require approval by the Faculty. Amendments to the appendices do not require Faculty approval but must be approved by the relevant Faculty Chair and the Associate Dean for Academic Affairs.
Appendix: Business Law

1. Faculty Chair: Brett McDonnell

2. Number of Required Credits in Approved Courses:
   For J.D. candidates: 18
   For LL.M candidates: 15

3. Mandatory Courses:
   a. One of the following two courses:
      Business Associations/Corporations (4cr) (LAW 6051) Corporations (3cr) (LAW 6012/6072) (Spring 2016 or earlier)
   b. The following course, but only for J.D. students in the class of 2020 or later:
      Taxation I (3cr) (Law 6100)
   c. One accounting-related course (waivable by the chair for students with substantial prior exposure to accounting).

Qualifying courses at the Law School are:
   Essentials of Business for Lawyers (3cr) (LAW 6016/6076)
   Business Finance, Accounting, and Strategy for Lawyers (3cr) (LAW 6101) (Fall 2015 or earlier)

Qualifying courses at the Business School are:
   Financial Accounting (3cr) (MBA 6030)
   Financial Accounting II (2cr) (ACCT 6101)
   Financial Statement Analysis (2cr) (ACCT 5160)
   Financial Statement Analysis (4cr) (ACCT 6100)
   Managerial Economics (3cr) (ACCT 6140)

   d. At least two (for J.D. candidates) or one (for LL.M candidates) of the following courses:
      Advanced Corporate Law (3cr) (LAW 6055)
      Bankruptcy (3cr) (LAW 6107)
      Contract Drafting (2cr) (LAW 6837)
      Corporate Bankruptcy (2cr) (LAW 6721)
      Corporate Tax (3cr) (LAW 6857)
      Creditor’s Remedies/Secured Transactions (3cr) (LAW 6109)
      Federal Securities Regulation (3-4cr) (LAW 6211)
      Mergers & Acquisitions (3cr) (LAW 6102)
      Partnership Taxation (3cr) (LAW 6114)

2 Students considering a waiver should consult with the Chair early in their studies.
4. Writing or Immersion Experience. This concentration requires students to complete a research paper or immersion experience.

a. The research paper requirement can be satisfied by either:

   (i) receiving a passing grade in a course that: (1) satisfies this concentration; and (2) requires a research paper that satisfies the Law School’s upper division writing requirement; or

   (ii) receiving permission from the concentration chair to count a research paper on a business law topic written in any other University of Minnesota graduate-level (5xxx or higher) course (including journal notes). The credits for the course will not count toward the concentration credits requirement, but the paper will satisfy the research paper requirement.

   In addition, LL.M. students may satisfy the paper requirement by successfully completing both LL.M Legal Writing and Legal Skills I & II (6021/6022). The credits for these courses count toward the concentration credit requirement.

   The Concentration Completion Form will ask you to document how you satisfied this requirement.

b. Instead of writing a research paper, students may complete any of the following immersion experiences:

   Bankruptcy Clinic (4cr) (LAW 7092)
   Business Law Clinic (6cr) (LAW 7860)
   Consumer Protection Clinic (7cr) (LAW 7030)
   Corporate Externship (3cr) (LAW 6035)
   Independent Field Placement (1-3cr) (LAW 7607/7609) (depends on nature of the placement and requires permission of concentration chair)
   Insurance Law Clinic (5cr) (LAW 7008)
   Minnesota Law Public Interest Residency Externship (Law 6067) (depends on nature of the placement and for a maximum of four credits)
   Minnesota Law Remote Semester Field Placement (LAW 7640) (depends on nature of the placement and for a maximum of four credits)
   Public Interest Field Placement (1-3cr) (LAW 7623) (depends on nature of the placement and requires permission of concentration chair)
   Tax Clinic (5cr) (LAW 7950)

   A student may not use a course to satisfy both the writing/immersion requirement and one of the mandatory course requirements listed above in 3.a and 3.b.

5. Recommended Courses at the Law School:

   The Business Law Concentration seminar (1cr) (LAW 6922) is not required, but is recommended for 2L students interested in the Business Law Concentration as a way to explore various career and curricular options within business law.

5. Writing or Immersion Experience. This concentration requires students to complete a research paper or immersion experience.
   a. The research paper requirement can be satisfied by receiving a passing grade in a course that satisfies this concentration and satisfies the Law School’s upper division writing requirement. LL.M. students may satisfy the paper requirement by successfully completing both LL.M Legal Writing and Legal Skills I & II (6021/6022). The credits for these courses count toward the concentration credit requirement.
   b. Instead of writing a research paper, students may complete any of the following immersion experiences:
      - Human Rights Law Field Placement (2-3cr) (LAW 7632)
      - Human Rights Litigation and International Legal Advocacy Clinic (4cr) (LAW 7400)

4. Writing or Immersion Experience. This concentration requires students to complete a research paper or immersion experience.

a. The research paper requirement can be satisfied by receiving a passing grade in a course that: (1) satisfies this concentration; and (2) requires a research paper that satisfies the Law School’s upper division writing requirement.

   b. LL.M. students may satisfy the paper requirement by successfully completing Practice Ready International Legal Research (LAW 6867).

   c. Students may also satisfy the paper requirement by successfully completing either International Law Moot Court or the Philip C. Jessup International Moot Court Competition (LAW 7075/7078) if the Faculty Chair concludes that the research and writing done as part of the course is comparable to that of a research paper and if such research and writing (or relevant portion) are the sole work of the student. Students planning to submit portions of a co-authored brief, memo etc. should retain a draft of the writing that is their sole work to submit in satisfaction of this requirement.

d. Instead of writing a research paper, students may complete any of the following immersion experiences:

- Human Rights Litigation & International Advocacy Clinic (LAW 7400)
- Immigration and Human Rights Law Clinic (LAW 7842)
- Field Placement or Public Interest Residency Externship (As noted in Section (5) below, depends on nature of the placement or externship and requires permission of concentration chair)
